

ABSTRACT

A nail polish applicator includes a propellant container, a nozzle and an actuator. The propellant container extends along a longitudinal axis and contains a nail polish under pressure. The nozzle is coupled to the container and has an outlet. The actuator is configured to selectively dispense the nail polish through the nozzle. The nozzle is configured to dispense the nail polish along a dispensing axis substantially parallel or coextensive with the longitudinal axis of the container.